Fav growth of the protectionist sentiment in the Bouth is strong and rapid, as hefte a racioniwhere sarred industries are springing up on every head. Among the most cotable of recent atterances to that effect was that of the fide John Ireland, of l'exec, tra days ago, at Man Autonio "f think," said he, "that the South will change views on the tariff. The time will come when the protected South will stand solidly arrayed against free trade," As he said in the same branch that the young man of to-day will probably never see enother Democratic Administra-tion in the United States, he doubtless majneg that the growth of protection means grath of Republication.
